

Ambassador James A. Joseph Brown Bag Discussion

Topic: Philanthropy and Equity in America

Third Millennium Philanthropy and Leadership Initiative
A Program of The Center on Philanthropy at Indiana University

With support from the Kellogg Foundation, Millennium focuses on youth, women, and people of color. We seek to encourage youth to explore the history, principles, and practices of philanthropy, thereby fostering interest in philanthropy as a career. We also facilitate the expansion of leadership opportunities for women and people of color in the philanthropic sector.

www.philanthropy.iupui.edu

Increasing the Understanding of Philanthropy and Improving Its Practice

Time & Place

When:

*November 1, 2006
11:30a.m. — 1:00p.m.*

Where:

*University Library
Ruth Lilly Auditorium
(On IUPUI's Campus)*

755 West Michigan Street

Indianapolis, IN 46202

Questions:

Please Contact Reagan La Cour

Phone: 317.278.8991

Email: rlacour@iupui.edu

Snacks and refreshments will be provided.

Guest Speaker: Ambassador James A. Joseph

Ambassador Joseph is professor of the Practice of Public Policy Studies at the Terry Sanford Institute of Public Policy at Duke University. He is also executive director of the United States-Southern Africa Center for Leadership and Public Values, a partnership between Duke and the University of Cape Town. Before serving as president of the Council on Foundations (1982-1995), he was president of the Cummins Foundation and executive director of the Irwin-Sweeney-Miller Foundation. Appointed to leadership positions by four U.S. presidents, he was most recently the ambassador to South Africa. He was the first and only American Ambassador to present his credentials to President Nelson Mandela.

Please join us for an opportunity to participate in an engaging and powerful discussion about philanthropy, fairness, and diversity.